THE BIG ISSUE

It may be unfair but there is little doubt that one of the major issues in the current political campaign is the "recession". It is difficult to reason with a man who is out of work or whose hours have been reduced. His pay check, or the lack of one, and not the stock market is the measure by which he judges the economic condition of the nation.

The stock market is not the barometer of business that it once was believed to be. It may express hope or confidence but its rise does not necessarily mean prosperity. We can name corporations whose stock has gone up while their production was decreasing. We have seen the value of shares boom upward while the corporations involved were laying men off.

On every side we hear of men being removed from their jobs in this area. No management takes this unpleasant step if it can find even a shade of work for employees to do. Obviously the upturn about which we read has not reached the production line.

The angle that has us a mite concerned is the unhappy circle it creates. The sale of such products as the new cars will contribute to a return to full employment. But people without pay checks can only look. They are not buyers. And those still on the job, even at full time, also are apt to hesitate about major expenditures in view of the discharges around them.

This writer is not pessimistic and believes we will enjoy another boom. In fact we are more concerned about that eventual boom than we are the so-called "recession". We cannot inflate forever without suffering. And we have seen a constant increase of costs since the Korean war began.

This takes no one off the hook as far as the voter is concerned. If the cessation of fighting in Korea can be credited to any party, which we doubt, what party has done anything about blocking steady increases since "peace" was restored. Our alleged "peace-time" has resulted in a continued increase of costs in nearly every category of our economy.

To discuss the science of economics with the average citizen is a waste of time. Most of us are not sufficiently informed on the subject to discuss it intelligently or to understand it completely when the experts debate the problem.

But there is one thing every family man does understand. He knows what it means to provide food, clothing, shelter, and pleasure for his wife and children. Take away the income that makes such a responsibility possible to fulfill and make new jobs impossible for him to find and you come up with a gentleman who is apt to be negatively influenced when he pulls that lever in November.

SOCIAL SECURITY INCREASES

Starting in January, and without any action on your part, if you are a recipient of social security your income will increase. The check that reaches you in February will be fatter.

Today the payments range from $30 to $108.50. This will change to a range of $33 to $116. Due to the fact that some women choose to receive their money when they are 62 instead of waiting until they are 65, their low is $26.40.

These figures will climb as the years roll by. Starting in 1959 the earning base on which payments are figured will move upward. It now is $4200 a year. In 1959 earnings up to $4800 a year will be credited to social security accounts and eventually will pay the worker $127 a month.

To accomplish this, up go social security taxes. Beginning in January you will have one-fourth of one per cent more taken out of your pay. This makes the cost 2-1/2 per cent each for employee and employer.

Self-employed people will pay 3-3/4 per cent. But of course you pay this only against that portion of your income which does not exceed $4,800. And the self-employed will pay the 1958 rate when their income tax form is completed early in 1959. When they pay their 1959 tax, up goes the percentage.

There is another change in the social security law about which many should know. Foster children now are eligible for social security payments. If a child has not been adopted by its foster parents before the husband dies the widow and the child today are eligible for social security. The time limit also has been removed for adopted children. Formerly they had to be adopted for at least three years before they were eligible. And the mother of

This Pennsylvania corporation makes substantial contributions to Pennsylvania's prosperity

Your telephone company is a Pennsylvania corporation

In the hundreds of communities throughout the state in which the telephone company operates, it is as local as a telephone call from you to your neighbor.

We are a Pennsylvania corporation, owned and financed by private citizens and subject to regulation by the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission and the Federal Communications Commission.

Our officers have all come up from the ranks. They have spent practically their entire business careers in this company.

Our Board of Directors is composed of outstanding leaders in Pennsylvania business, industry, finance and education. Its members include men from Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Harrisburg, Lancaster, Reading and Allentown.

This company is managed and operated by Pennsylvania men and women, many of whom may be your friends and neighbors or even members of your family, and all of whom are your fellow citizens.

Your telephone company makes substantial contributions to Pennsylvania's prosperity

Your telephone company is vital to the progress and prosperity of this great state

As an employer, for example, we provide steady work at good pay to 35,000 people. Our payroll is more than $175,000,000 a year, and most of it is spent in the communities where telephone people work and live.

As a buyer—a customer of others—we buy more than $45,000,000 worth of supplies and services each year from small, medium and large local businesses—furniture, typewriters and other office supplies, trucks, tires, gasoline, oil, food, printing, steel, aluminum, concrete and scores of other things.

As a builder, we are spending nearly $8,600,000 this year for the construction of 46 telephone buildings and additions to buildings. Thus we provide jobs and income for thousands of Pennsylvanians not directly on our payroll . . . for bricklayers, carpenters, plasterers, electricians, plumbers.

As citizens, we—the employees—take an active part in civic and charitable causes, both as contributors and as workers and leaders.

We are proud to be part of Pennsylvania and to provide a service so vital to its greatness.

WELCOME, THE CRITIC

We are pleased that the Warren high school faculty has sufficient courage to bring John Crosby, outspoken critic of television, radio, and the arts, to Warren for a public appearance next Thursday, in Beaty auditorium. Crosby is an explosive personality who might not be considered "safe" in some circles. The fact that a group of our teachers are willing to take that chance is commendable and they should be supported.

We often have revealed our wish for a series of programs involving informed people of national and international repute. The former Talk of the Month Club was lamented herein by us when it ceased to present speakers.

Too many writers and commentators are handicapped in the mediums that supply them space or time. They often are not permitted to speak the whole truth as they see it, or at least do not believe it would be wise for them to do so.

But given a local audience with the wraps removed, their hair comes down and facts that otherwise would be suppressed come tumbling forth. We do not say that this will be so with Mr. Crosby who apparently draws few punches in his three columns a week, but with his words appearing in eighty of our newspapers we doubt if there is not some restraint.

Television is so new a medium of entertainment and information that the place of the critic is far more important than his counterparts in stage, screen, and literature. Television will develop only as we shape it through our demands, and outspoken, constructive criticism will form and shape those demands.

Many of us will watch a program and accept it, partly because television still is a novelty to some extent and partly because we have accepted what we believe are its limitations. The intelligent critic serves to point up our own limitations which often are revealed to us when we read the review of a program. If we read with an open mind we usually see how easily we have been satisfied and realize how much better could be that on which we waste hours of our time.

As long as the public accepts commonplace floor shows, hackneyed comics, cheap plots, and ineffectual news coverage as a regular diet, television will supply them and will find advertisers who will pay the freight. Until public thinking and demand move ahead of script writers and the program directors to a higher level, the public will follow and ordinary entertainment will do the leading.

Here is where the critic can play his major role. He must alert the viewers to current weaknesses and suggest improvements. He must create dissatisfaction and inspire a demand for better service. How good that service will be depends much on his ability to recognize the best and at least to create a desired image.

Learning to enjoy good books, fine art, quality drama, honest commentary, and the associated forms of pleasure and enlightenment requires good teachers who open our eyes to the best. This is the task of the truly dedicated critic.

The Observer gives much space to television. The reason is not entirely for the purpose of making it easy for you to find your favorite program. We suspect that television is very much the window of tomorrow. It is the mode of travel which will take you to all parts of the world, and eventually to every pole of the universe. It can have the most powerful effect on the public opinion of this world that ever has been known.

How this giant is nurtured in these early days will have much to do with what happens to the people of this nation and the peoples of the earth. Maybe those of other earths. It has greater range and more potential power than all the newspapers, the radio, the magazines, and all other media combined.

We want to have a part in that development and we have done our best to reveal what is occurring in the industry, how it is controlled, or not controlled by Washington, who directs its policies, and how it is being limited in its scope by commercialism. It is a tiny light we shed in a small county on the fringe of good television, but enough seeds in enough places and we may have a choice crop.

Rightly handled and directed, television can prove a major help to education. In this day of expensive schools and a scarcity of qualified teachers, a few million spent on educational television in prime hours of the day would be a public service that actually would be inexpensive and should be publicly financed.

The problems of thousands of small communities with building and teaching limitations could be solved by television. Grade and high school pupils could enjoy the benefits of a national network on which the very best of professors would appear. Laboratory limitations would be solved through programs which would have unlimited facilities at their disposal for demonstration.

And best of all, mother and dad could sit in at home; learning would not stop; adults and young people would keep pace; the ill would lose little time, and there are many other advantages, some of them obvious, others yet to be realized. This but touches the prospects. For example, an alert teacher would gain much through a lesson taught by the best in the business and would have his or her own work made easier and the teaching standards would be raised.

How this will fit into Mr. Crosby's thinking we have no conception, but we recognize him as a leading critic of this important field and we are eager to hear him out. If we disagree with him heartily we will do so only through the process of thinking. Enough thinking on the part of all in place of blind acceptance and television may prove a real benefit.

Mr. Crosby as a leading critic apparently is convinced that public pressure must be brought to bear on the broadcasting industry for better viewing, else he would not be putting so much effort into his work and touring the nation to speak on the subject. He has said, "A TV critic has a tough row to hoe. He is forced to be literate about the illiterate, witty about the witless, and coherent about the incoherent," but despite this expressed cynicism he is evidence of a faith in television.

In Brief

AN EXPERIMENT in library service may be tried in Warren county, with much financial help received from the state through the use of federal funds. The Warren county commissioners have appointed a county library advisory board which will meet with the Warren library board next Tuesday evening. Service for the county will be discussed.

Warren county has been proposed as a pilot library to show what can be done. About $50,000 will be spent annually, the federal funds making up the difference between the Warren and Warren county budgets. It is expected that the county will appropriate between $10,000 and $15,000.

The state is buying two bookmobiles, one of which will be used in Warren county. A county librarian, a driver-clerk, and a clerk for the Warren library probably will be the basic staff with which the service will start.

The bookmobile would visit the smaller libraries and stations yet to be named for the purpose of loaning books and taking reservations for wanted volumes. Complete details will not be known until a contract is arranged.

Attending the meeting will be Ralph Blasingame, state librarian, and Ernest Doerchuck, state extension librarian. The Warren county experiment will serve to support plans for new legislation that will improve Pennsylvania's library system which rates 32nd in the nation.

THE REMAINING ASSETS of the Warren Axe and Tool Co. have been sold to Interlectric Corp. of Warren.

E. W. Koebley, general manager of the firm, stated the manufacture of forgings in Warren had been discontinued permanently and that the sale of the property included all of the land, buildings, machinery and equipment owned by Warren Axe and Tool.

It has been reported that Interlectric, local manufacturer of fluorescent tubes, needs the additional buildings primarily for storage. A large part of the plant will, however, be made available to outside industry that might be interested in locating here.

ONE OF THE TOP TEN speakers in the country, Dr. William H. Alexander, of Oklahoma City, will give the principal address at the February 25th annual membership banquet of the Warren Area Chamber of Commerce.

OFFICIALS ARE ADVISING real estate agents, utilities and others concerned with industrial development that the Knox Glass Co. plant in Sheffield is for sale. The factory is located on an eight and one-half acre site in Sheffield.

TURN 'EM BACK. The clock goes back one hour with the return of Standard Time at 2 a. m. Sunday, October 26.

WARREN'S SWIMMING POOL project and possible pool sites will be discussed by two state officials at a special meeting of the site and construction meeting at 7 o'clock next Wednesday evening in the Jefferson auditorium.

Kenneth W. Abell, recreation consultant for the Dept. of Commerce, and James Harvey, of the Dept. of Health, will visit the community during the afternoon and then give their opinions and show films to the committee. No major decision is expected to be made at this session.

The committee has extended an invitation for members of the Borough Council, school board and recreation board to attend.

75 ACRES OF FOREST land was burned over Tuesday in a fire that broke out about 1:40 p. m. at the head of McConnell Run about two miles from Chapman Dam. About 60 to 70 men from the Clarendon, Pleasant and North Warren volunteer fire departments, with U. S. Forestry Dept. man Frank Rudolph in charge, brought the fire under control by 4 p. m. The blaze was discovered by the Sheffield tower. It is believed by Clarendon VFD officials, first to arrive at the scene, that the fire was caused by a hunter. Their emergency truck was sideswiped by a Dodge car that was speeding away from the scene upon their arrival.

TWO WARREN FIREMEN were suspended from duty, without pay, for a period of seven days as a result of action taken in an adjourned meeting of Warren Borough Council last week.

Given the suspensions, which ran from October 20th to 26th, were Floyd Wilbur and Paul A. Drescher. Council ruled that while on duty at the West End station on March 31 and August 20 the two firemen "failed and neglected to answer and acknowledge two taps which were sent out over the alarm system" of the borough fire department. Such action, according to the statement submitted by the public safety committee and resolved by the town council, was in neglect and violation of the rules and regulations of the fire department.

WINS $2000. For submitting the top statement in a "I like Kellogg's Corn Flakes because" contest, Steven H. Cullinane, 16, of Warren, has received a cash prize of $2,000. The Warren high school student is the son of Mrs. Mary Cullinane.

OVER 350 EMPLOYEES of Local 993, IAM, AFL-CIO, from Sylvania Electric met at the North Warren Community House Sunday afternoon and voted unanimously to accept the two-year contract offered by the company. A wage increase and more fringe benefits were included in the new contract.

NEW CHAIRMAN of the Warren County Republican Women is Mrs. William E. Rice. She succeeds Mrs. K. Earl Abel, Jr.

THE PUBLIC is invited to attend the preview of the Jefferson Pavilion at Warren General Hospital from two to five p. m. Sunday, November 2. The building, former maternity ward, has been remodeled into a chronic illness and rehabilitation center.

DIVORCES GRANTED in Warren County Court Tuesday and Wednesday of this week were in the following cases: Shirley Ann Stoudt vs.

Frank Eugene Stoudt, Jr., Emma M. Brunecz vs. Andrew F. Brunecz, Lorentz P. Williams vs. Angeline Williams; Viola L. Hinsdale vs. Virgil Hinsdale, Josephine D. Voisen vs. Merle F. Voisen, Charles L. Froman vs. Mary M. Froman, Twila J. House vs. Samuel G. House.

ARRESTED, Arthur Greaves, 74, R. D. 2, Russell, was charged with driving while intoxicated after he struck a parked auto owned by Joseph H. Morris, Salamanca, N.Y., on Pennsylvania ave., W., at 12:51 p. m. last Thursday. The operator pleaded not guilty to the charge and was released on $500 property bail pending trial. Damage to the autos was minor.

THE WRONG SPOT. A reckless driving count was placed against George Cohan, 116 Oak st., Warren, after a mixup that took place about 11:50 p. m. Friday.

Cohan struck a parked car owned by William Dahl, North Warren, near the Pennsylvania ave. and Averill st. intersection, but did it in front of the police patrol car. The officers were in the process of pulling another vehicle to the curb when Cohan drove his auto between the two stopping cars and hit the Dahl auto. Total damage was estimated at $350 to the cars involved.

BLACKED OUT. John W. Caldin, 56, of 104 Main st., Warren, suffered injuries to the nose and chest at 1:40 a. m. Wednesday when he blacked out at the intersection of Conewango and Third avenues and hit a tree head-on. He was proceeding east on Third and was starting to turn right on Conewango when the incident occurred. Property damage amounted to $400.

APPROXIMATELY 15,300 copies of the new Bell Telephone Co. directory are being distributed this week.

The book lists customers in Chancellors Valley, Endeavor, Grand Valley, Kinzua, Lottsville, Russell Sheffield, Sugar Grove, Tidioute, Tionesta, Warren, and Youngsville.

THE RED CROSS requests that people bring western stories and pocket-size fiction books to headquarters in Warren before November 1st. At that time the RC organization will begin to distribute the books to camps and Veterans' hospitals.

TREASURY AGENT:

Two Detroit Brothers Snared In $268,000 Tax Fraud After Filing 68 Different Returns

This is the story of the U. S. Treasury's fight on crime in its many heinous forms. It is taken from "Treasury Agent," just published by Simon and Schuster, Inc., and authored by Andrew Tully, well-known newspaperman.

BY ANDREW TULLY

THERE APPARENTLY are countless ways to try to cheat Uncle Sam out of his income-tax dollar and sometimes the harassed operatives at Internal Revenue Service are inclined to bet that somebody has discovered every one of them.

One of the most lucrative, if you can get away with it, is the mass refund racket. This is the dodge whereby a taxpayer files a whole batch of fictitious income-tax returns - in every one of which he puts in for a refund for overpaying his tax, through the withholding system.

The systems vary. Some swindlers file under different names but use the same address. Some file under the same name but in different Internal Revenue Districts. Almost all use the tried-and-true gimmick of the forwarding address - usually a postoffice box or the General Delivery window. Generally this entails a good deal of hopping around the country to pick up the refund checks, but this is not too much trouble if the stakes are high enough and they usually are.

Two Detroit brothers, however, did it the easy way. They filed 68 returns under different names but listed only Detroit addresses on the returns. If Uncle Sam hadn't caught up with them they would have been richer by a total of $268,479.14 in artificial refunds.

In this case, the Treasury Department owed a big assist to a Detroit postoffice employee, Lovell I. MacKenzie, superintendent of the College Park Station.

One day in June, 1956, MacKenzie called the Detroit Postal Inspector's Office with his story. Two days previously, he said a tax refund check had been delivered to an incorrect address; the people living at the address had opened it by mistake and returned it to him at the College Park Station. The day after the check was returned, the station received a request from the payee that the check be forwarded to 20252 Van Dyke Street, Detroit.

Casualty, MacKenzie just happened to mention the forwarding address in a conversation with some mail carriers and was overheard by a carrier nearby. This carrier mentioned that he also had a forwarding address to 20252 Van Dyke Street. MacKenzie became suspicious, since a government check was involved. He checked all other routes and found four more forwarding orders to the Van Dyke Street address.

The Postal Inspector's Office put in a call to the Intelligence Division of the Detroit office of Internal Revenue. All stations in the Detroit area were circularized and 71 forwarding orders to the Van Dyke address were uncovered. Checking further, the post office found 42 checks totaling $155,426.34, which were about to be forwarded to the address.

A mail watch was placed on the address, and all government checks due to be forwarded there were intercepted. Meanwhile, regional Disbursing Offices were instructed to stop all checks being forwarded to the address and the Federal Reserve Bank was asked to stop payment on the checks.

Within a few days, 19 checks were returned by the bank; three had been cashed and four had been deposited to the account of one Norman G. Zachary.

The checks bore the account numbers of the "taxpayers" and the returns were located in Internal Revenue files. Each return was found to show the income of a fictitious salesman and showed taxes withheld on gross commissions of from $25,000 to $30,000, and travel and other business expense of $10,000 to $15,000. Each return claimed a refund of from $3,000 to $4,500.

Returns were screened in the so-called "nonbusiness high-refund" classification, and the process disclosed that 68 phony returns had been prepared by Norman G. Zachary and Edward J. Zacharski, operators of a tax advisory service and insurance office in Detroit. The pair were brothers, one of them having changed his name.

On June 19, 1956, occurred one of those coincidences confined to Hollywood products. While two special agents of Internal Revenue were interviewing a bank official about the case, Zachary came into the bank and attempted to close his account.

One of the agents phoned the United States Attorney, who told him to arrest Zachary and bring him in to the office. There a complaint was filed and the agents picked up a search warrant for the brothers' office, plus an arrest warrant for Zacharski.

After putting the pinch on Zacharski, the agents searched the office. They found carbon paper which had been used in preparing a tax return and which still showed the imprint of a signature affixed to the return. A typewriter was confiscated and later was shown to have been used in preparing some of the returns.

The brothers refused to open the safe, but the safe manufacturer furnished its combination. It contained six refund checks, totaling $25,503, clipped to the retained copies of the returns, copies of all returns for which the refund checks had not yet been received and $850 in currency.

Each false return seeking a refund listed only one employer, and three different employers' names were used in all. Two of these were fictitious and the third denied employing any of the persons listed on the returns.

Zacharski turned out to be a former Internal Revenue agent who had been dismissed in October, 1955, on charges of having falsified his educational background on an application for promotion. In-investigating agents found that as part of his scheme, Zacharski had induced a revenue agent acquaintance to deliver a number of the false returns to the main Internal Revenue office, with instructions to the clerks to "scatter them through the blocks." Zacharski explained that he didn't want all the returns coming up for audit at the same time.

TREASURY AGENT

The two brothers each were indicted on 139 fraud counts by a Federal grand jury in Detroit on July 9, 1957.

It is Internal Revenue's premise that Zachary-Zacharski brothers would have been apprehended eventually even if the Post Office Department had not lent a hand. Sooner or later, somebody in the Treasury Department's tax-collecting agency would have uncovered the scheme through a routine check of employers to verify the amount of taxes the returns claimed had been withheld.

This, in fact, is what happened in the case of Roy F. J. Mahoney of Los Angeles, described by Internal Revenue as the most ambitious one-man mass refund racketeer ever to sell a gold brick to Uncle Sam.

Mahoney's undoing started when the Los Angeles office of the Intelligence Division got a request from the Chief of the Intelligence Division in Fargo, S. D., to visit the Central Chevrolet Company in Los Angeles and find out if Roy F. J. Mahoney ever had been employed there.

Central Chevrolet reported it had never heard of Roy F. J. Mahoney. Moreover, company officials said they had received several identical inquiries from other district directors' offices asking for the same information.

The case was assigned to Special Agent Charles Vitello, who immediately alerted Intelligence offices throughout the country. Back came a flood of telephone calls, telegrams, teletype messages and letters reporting that Mahoney had filed scores of returns and advising that he had filed a series of changes of address to lavish hotels in Mexico during the past few months.

Vitello traced Mahoney to San Diego on a change-of-address report from Seattle, Wash., but Mahoney had checked out of his hotel only 15 minutes before the agents got there. Then word was received from St. Louis that Mahoney had filed a change of address to General Delivery, Inglewood, Calif.; from Seattle came the message that he had filed an address change to General Delivery, Alhambra, Calif.

"Stakeouts" were maintained at the general-delivery windows at both the Alhambra and Inglewood post offices. Mahoney was picked up at the Alhambra post office when he called at the general-delivery window to inquire about mail.

The story Mahoney told marked him as one of the most conscientious swindlers ever to seek the fast buck. He confessed that he had spent eight months doing research work for his scheme before embarking on a mass-filing project that resulted in the filing of one hundred and eighty-eight 1956 income tax returns, claiming refunds totaling $85,000.

Mahoney said he had filed the returns in the names of Roy F. J. Mahoney, Jack C. Compton, Tom

M. Gudgel and Larry G. Smith, and that he already had received two refund checks, one in the name of J. C. Compton and the other in his own name.

During his eight months' research, Mahoney said he got the addresses of all district directors, chatted with employees of Internal Revenue about procedures, gathered a suitcase filled with income-tax forms and change-of-address forms, and worked out the processing time of returns by Internal Revenue.

He also worked out a schedule of mailing times so that, as far as he could foresee, the returns would be processed separately. He claimed that he had worked out to within 24 hours time when he could expect a given check at a given post office.

"If you guys had given me one more week you'd have never caught me," Mahoney told Agent Vitello.

In his pockets when Mahoney was arrested, agents found a small address book containing notations for the first 96 returns and sets of identification cards, complete with photographs, establishing him as both Tom M. Gudgel and Larry G. Smith.

In his hotel room he had another address book containing notations for the other 92 returns he had filed, plus a set of identification papers stating that he was Jack C. Compton.

Mahoney explained that the notations and abbreviations in the books showed the identity of each return filed, the name of the employer used, the district to which the return was sent, the address used and the subsequent changes of address submitted.

In Los Angeles on July 22, 1957, Mahoney was sentenced to three years in jail on fraud charges. (Copyright, 1958, by Andrew Tully; distributed by United Feature Syndicate Inc.)

STRIKE THREE

Another quiz show has taken the full count, the latest to be retired as a result of grand jury investigations being NBC-TV's "Twenty-One". Dotto and $64,000 Challenge were the first to disappear from the air after charges were hurled that the shows were "rigged".

Twenty-One's ratings have dropped steadily since the quiz probe began so sponsors have cancelled it. Replacement on the Thursday 8:30-9 p. m. time slot will be "Concentration", an audience participation show which awards mostly merchandise prizes. Twenty-One's emcee, Jack Barry, will host the new program.

MATTER OF OPINION

NBC-TV programs and personalities have won six top places in a readers' poll conducted by Sterling Productions. The awards, called "Vikkis", are listed in a current TV magazine and include Perry Como as "favorite male star and best male singer"; Loretta Young as "favorite female star and best dramatic star"; Dinah Shore as "favorite female singer and best musical show"; Jerry Lewis as "best comedy star"; Steve Allen Show as "best variety show"; and Twenty-One as "best quiz show".

IRON CURTAIN CENSORSHIP

The Soviet government's newly announced policy on the export of newsfilm, as reported by NBC's Moscow correspondent Irving R. Levine, will effectively restrict any spot film coverage of Russia, says William R. McAndrew, of NBC News. Mr. McAndrew said an appeal was being made to the State Department to use its influence to negotiate a lessening of the restrictions which came within a few days of the Soviet expulsion of CBS and AP correspondents. The Iron Curtain is drawn tighter to reduce the amount of information available to American people about Soviet Russia.

The restrictions: newsmen must get prior permission for every story on which they plan photographic coverage; they must submit all exposed film and narration for approval (if approved, the film would thus be delayed at least 24 hours in shipment); a charge of $1,000 will be exacted for each 100 meters (328 feet) of exposed film shot in the USSR, regardless of how much footage is ever used on the air.

MURROW SPEAKS OUT

Edward R. Murrow, radio and television commentator, addressed the Association of Radio and Television News Directors in convention at Chicago last week and his remarks caused some unhappiness in the upper echelons of the industry.

In brief, Murrow charged radio and television saying "TV insulates us from the realities of the world we live in". He demanded interpretation in news broadcasts and added "if radio news is to be regarded as a commodity, only acceptable when saleable, and only when packaged to fit the advertising appropriation of a sponsor, then I don't care what you call it, it isn't news".

He charged television networks for their inadequacy in the news reporting field, and also laid the responsibility for making a better informed public on industry heads.

If more people of Murrow's stature and prestige would stand up, as he did, and demand the type of news coverage and informative programming that would lift television and radio from a morass of mediocrity, we might see some results. As he pointed out, the responsibility lies with the top men in the business and they will have to be convinced that a major share of the public doesn't want to be lulled, it wants to be stimulated.

DIAL SPINNERS

UB ROUND TABLE will discuss "Family Life in Suburbia" at 7 p.m. Saturday on WBEN. Participants will be deans of University of Buffalo's School of Social Work and College of Arts and Sciences and a parent education co-ordinator from Amherst Central Adult School.

PEOPLE ARE FUNNY at 7:30 Saturday night on NBC channels will have films taken of the inhabitants of Hunza, a tiny land in the Himalayas near northernmost Pakistan. The program sent Dr. Alan Banik, an optometrist, to this fabulous land where the average life span is said to be 125 years, disease is unknown and vision is perfect.

GREAT GAME OF POLITICS, at 5 p. m. Sunday on CBS channels, carefully examines the financing of political campaigns with guests U.S. Senators Case (R., N.J.), Hennings (D., Mo.), and Newberger (D., Ore.). Others will join moderator Eric Sevareid in trying to determine what it costs to run for political office.

OMNIBUS will be seen for the first time this season at 5 to 6 p. m. Sunday on NBC channels.

"Capital Punishment" is the title of the first program, with noted American trial lawyer Joseph N. Welch as guide. Types of capital punishment practiced down through the centuries will be examined. Today, but five methods of executing criminals are used by the civilized world. In the U. S. these are hanging, shooting, electrocution, and lethal gas administration. Guillotining, outside this country, is the fifth method.

SMALL WORLD this Sunday will have entertainment as its core. Edward R. Murrow will interview Lauren Bacall, movie actress; Eric A. Johnston, Hollywood spokesman, and Malcolm Muggeridge, former editor of Punch magazine.

20TH CENTURY at 6:30 p. m. Sunday on CBS presents "The Red Sell", a special, 2-part report on the Soviet's propaganda offensive against the United States. Viewers will see how the Russians manipulate the thought of unsuspecting peoples around the world.

VOICE OF FIRESTONE will have as guest performers Alfred Drake and Doretta Morrow for Monday evening at 9:00. WGR and WFBG.

SHIRLEY TEMPLE STORY BOOK presents "Rapunzel" at 8-9 p. m. Monday on NBC channels. Based on the Grimm Brothers tale, it is the story of Rapunzel who, imprisoned in a tower by a cruel witch, admits a prince to her prison for frequent visits by letting him climb up her golden braids. The witch discovers the prince climbing the "golden ladder", cuts Rapunzel's hair and sends the prince tumbling into the thorns below.

WONDER OF WONDERS?

A national magazine is expected to give aspirin a major pat on its bottle cap in a near issue. Aspirin will be rated among the wonder drugs which are receiving so much credit for healing.

LOOK, NO WIRES

A national series of tv, radio, and newspaper ads soon will proclaim the razor which shaves without plugging into the wall. The transistor age is uncomplicating our life.

Add to this the radio which you remove from your car, place in your pocket and take with you while you are shopping or playing. And the tv set which is so remotely controlled that you can tune it in from any part of the house. . . . no wires. . . . just hands.

KANE MAKES IT

Kane made the Wall Street Journal last Friday and the New York Times Sunday. It was the center of an ad focusing attention on the industrial advantages in this part of the state and as a testimonial it tells about Stackpole Carbon Company expanding through the addition of a 35,000 sq. ft. plant in Kane.

INNOCENCE REQUIRES SPEED

Our television world collapsed last Saturday night when Gun Smoke's philosophic marshal stated that a man must have been guilty because he drew first. If you are innocent, life is not so sweet. You let the other man reach for his and give him odds. Without a handkerchief to drop we always have wondered what determined who went for his first. Now we know. But to the rescue and saving our entire evening is another network with Cimarron City, where the good are good and fast.

Television and Radio

By John Crosby

ONE OF THE GREAT ONES

An evening with the ageless and wonderful Fred Astaire was just about the best television show I ever saw. It was one of those memorable experiences like the Mary Martin-Ethel Merman duet of years ago, that people will talk about for years, and it'll set a mark that other performers will aim at and probably never achieve.

Like the Martin-Merman show Astaire's show got a lot of sentimental help from great old songs that he has been associated with and, as he himself said, it's been his "great good fortune" to launch some of the best. But the reason, I'll bet, he has been given the best songs by the best of composers -- Irving Berlin, Cole Porter, Jerome Kern, George Gershwin, among others -- is that he was and is almost the perfect performer -- a glowing personality, matchless talent as a dancer (has there ever been a better one?) and a tireless perfectionist to boot. Mostly, if you get any two of these qualities, you're lucky. (If you get personality and talent, you get a lazy or dissolute one. The hard-working ones are usually missing in the talent or personality departments.)

Astaire worked on this show for six months and from the opening shot (a tight closeup of his tapping foot) to the end where he was ad-libbing dance steps in front of his group, the hard work showed in effortless poise and ease. Astaire slid from number to number -- he was involved in almost all of them the whole hour through -- without ruffling a feather or missing a beat. Rhythms succeeded rhythms and moods succeeded moods, each one prepared for by the predecessor and laying the groundwork for the next one.

The first dance, in which he activated a group of dancers in various groupings was impish, elfin, very light in mood. Then he danced a romantic duet with his new partner, Bonnie Chase, who is strongly suggestive of Brigitte Bardot (as if one of them isn't almost more than I can bear). Next came a solo with suggestions from some of his great movie solos employing imaginary props such as drums, torpedoes, drumsticks, pianos -- with great sound effects.

There were two big numbers. One, with Dave Rose music, found Astaire dancing with a whole slew of sultry dames in a street scene -- the whole thing sounding and looking very beat generation. The second, "St. James Infirmary" with Jonah Jones and his orchestra had Astaire and Miss Chase in a sexy blues and rhythm dance that reeked of the '20s. Incidentally, the show was in color and these two numbers, the first in subdued blues slashed with orange light, the second in flaming pinks and yellows, looked like modern French paintings. Color TV adds enormously to this sort of show.

Then Astaire simply sang some of his great songs from his movies (only two from his stage career, "Lady Be Good" and "Night and Day") -- "Cheek to Cheek" "A Fine Romance," "They Can't Take That Away From Me," "Nice Work If You Can Get It," "A Foggy Day in London Town," "I Won't Dance," "Something's Got To Give," and "White Tie, Top Hat, and Tails." "The time has gone so fast I don't know where it's gone," said Astaire, closing it all off. "I've never had such a good time." I suppose that's why the rest of us had such a good time, too.

I wish I could be as enthusiastic about the earlier-in-the-week big show of Mr. Astaire's old sidekick, Ginger Rogers, at whom he sang many of those great old songs, but I can't. This was an intermittent affair which started out very badly. There were early numbers in a country fair which seemed awfully self-conscious, stagey and just downright bad in which a great deal of energy was misspent. Then the Ritz Brothers did a number full of dirty jokes which weren't funny. (If you're going to be dirty, you ought at least to have the saving grace to be funny.)

There were some high spots. The wonderfully versatile Miss Rogers did a number with Ray Bolger lampooning all the no-talent guests on television. Bolger and a chorus did a marvelous dance to "Let a Smile Be Your Umbrella." The show finished with splendid verve as Miss Rogers and a partner danced "The Continental" and "Night and Day" and that was just plain wonderful. Just there, it was touched with the magic that illumined all of the Astaire show.

FBI REVELATIONS

We recommend an article titled "The FBI" which appears in the October 18 issue of "The Nation" magazine. It may not be on the news stands now but you will find it in the library, we guess.

It is written by Fred J. Cook, a nationally known reporter and crime investigator, and requires the entire edition to cover the subject. It reviews the beginning of the organization, Edgar Hoover's part in its expansion, its publicity tendencies, the Hoover attack on our supreme court, and questions the department's efficiency insofar as catching the really big criminals.

A great amount of publicity has been given the nabbing of car thieves and kidnapers, but this is small time stuff. No really big name in criminal circles stoops to kidnaping, which is a one-time performance and yields too little for the risk. It also is too easy to solve.

But the big syndicates with such names as Joe Adonis, the Moretti brothers, Albert Anastasia, Anthony Strollo, Frank Erickson, Lucky Luciano, Costello, Kastel, Lansky, Max Stark and many others didn't bother with cheap crime and were caught or driven from our shores by Kefauver exposures, or the work of such men as Dewey and Hogan, New York City district attorneys.

Much also has been done by the FBI which is commendable, such as the creation of an efficient fingerprinting system and a scientific laboratory. There also is the National Police Academy established by the FBI and the improved quality of its officers in recent years.

There are many sides to the study and it is divided into ten parts, making it possible for you to jump about and read the portions which interest you. And we assure you that most of it will place a vice on your attention.

The issue between the FBI and the supreme court in the Jencks case is discussed in the first part of the article. Jencks was charged with filing a false non-Communist affidavit. The supreme court ruled in the appeal that previous statements made by witnesses must be revealed and the failure to do so caused the court to throw out the conviction.

The publicity which followed the decision would give the impression that the court had opened the files to all who wanted to probe its secrets. Such was not the case, as one can learn by listening to Dean Erwin N. Griswold of the Harvard Law School, and by studying the wording of the court.

The court's decision is concisely explained in one of its phrases.

"It is unconscionable to allow it (the government) to undertake prosecution and then invoke its governmental privileges to deprive the accused of anything which might be material to the defense."

Dean Griswold, a recognized expert in legal procedure said, "There is absolutely nothing in the opinion giving the public access to the secret files of the FBI. It simply blueprints procedures used right here in Boston and every criminal court."

The article reveals the many sides to major stories which have occurred involving the FBI, and there are revelations which should interest every American. If this is not a police state and if there is no danger of it becoming one, then such writers are free to take on such subjects. It will be interesting now to see what the reaction is in Washington.

When Cyrus Eaton, one of America's leading industrialists, had the courage to criticize the FBI on a Mike Wallace program the Un-American Activities Committee was on him with all claws. But the attack backfired when much of the press asked if the committee's actions did not prove that we are in danger of an inquisition when we speak out.

LIFE SLIPS UP

Any action which might inspire doubt concerning the infallibility of President Eisenhower seems a bit out of character within the pages of Life magazine, which not only is very much a big business voice but also is a major Ike supporter. But for the past week it has carried stories by Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery and his side of the African and European campaigns. Monty and Ike did not agree.

This is not to say that Life by this action proves our general was wrong, but there is little doubt that there will be many who will believe such is the case after they have read Montgomery's side. The point we are making is that the timing is bad. The President is trying to rally a GOP campaign. Anything which steals from his glory robs him of some appeal at this vital moment.

For the President's position you should read his book, "Crusade in Europe".

know these facts

Because your TV picture tube is subject to wear and the aging effects of time, it will have to be replaced at some time during the life of your set. When this time comes, remember these important facts:

- A good picture tube requires the best high-grade materials and the best manufacturing skills. So don't buy a bargain-priced picture tube.
- Insist upon a reputable brand picture tube with a familiar trade-mark. A compromise in quality will give you little satisfaction.
- A 12-month warranty card is your protection. Insist upon and get your warranty card.

Customer satisfaction is the foundation of our success, and that's why we recommend and install RCA Silverama Super-Aluminized Picture Tubes.

UNBEATEN BRADFORD DEFEATS GAME DRAGONS

The unbeaten Bradford Owls took advantage of the breaks of the game and made Warren their fifth victim of the season when they dumped the Dragons, 26 to 12, at Bradford last Friday night.

A pair of speedy Bradford backs Mike Pascarella and Carl Spehar, aided by a gigantic Owl forward wall scored TD's in the first three quarters to give the Owls a 26 to 0 edge. Pascarella went 4 yards and 31 yards for his two TD's and Spehar ran 4 yards and 35 yards for his two scores.

The Owls opened the scoring in the first quarter when they recovered a Warren fumble on the kickoff and moved the ball from there to score.

The Dragons who never gave up although they were down four TD's, scored twice in the final period. Lou Mascaro tossed a 16 yard pass to center Bill Mervine for the first Dragon score. Mervine became an eligible pass receiver when three linemen overshifted. Dick Terry romped 16 yards for the second Dragon score.

The Blue and White return to War Memorial Field this Saturday afternoon to battle Ridgway. Game time is 1:30 p.m.

OFF GOES THE LID

The quiet of arrow will be replaced by the blast of the scattergun this Saturday as most of the small game becomes legal in Pennsylvania woods and fields. Grouse, turkeys, squirrels, pheasants, cottontails, and quail may be knocked over and brought to your table. If you have forgotten the limits they are 2 a day and 8 a season for the grouse, one and one for turkey, 6 and 30 for squirrel, 2 and 8 for pheasants, 4 and 20 for cottontails, 4 and 12 for quail.

So have fun but don't forget that none of these is worth the life of a man. Make sure it is game which attracts your gun and that nothing else is in the line of fire.

The Game Commission has the following to offer:

COMMON SENSE AND PRECAUTIONS

Much has been said and done toward the prevention of hunter gun casualties, which are a blight on a wonderful pastime. Those who study the causes of the unfortunate shootings become increasingly convinced that the answer lies in the human element--what hunters do afield with guns while under emotional stress. The solution, if it can be wrought, lies in shooters restraining their impulses while out for wildlife. This, of course, is an individual matter calling for self-mastery by the man behind the gun.

Actually the safety problem largely resolves itself to this: know your firearm and respect it for what it may do; suppress excitement when the quarry flushes; and be unmistakably sure of your target (and that no human is endangered) before squeezing the trigger. Hunting safety requires that a person use good judgment and maintain a sense of values, being always aware that no piece of game is worth risking human life.

Of course, learning safe gun handling and hunting precautions is the first essential. The Game Commission indicated its belief in the value of such instruction when it acted this summer, in conjunction with the National Rifle Association, to produce hundreds of hunter safety instructors to teach students, Boy Scouts and others how to shoot and handle guns safely. But the problem goes beyond training, important as that first step is, and it affects some oldsters too - those so familiar with hunting arms they have become careless.

As in the case of automobile drivers, no amount of training can foretell what an individual will do when under pressure. Despite the best of teaching, in the excitement of the hunt some persons will shoot impulsively. It is then that the gun handler or another person may get hurt. In the final analysis the problem is emotional control.

Somehow the snap shooting hunters must learn that putting on the brake --that one second wait to make sure --sometimes is the difference between safety and tragedy. Unfortunately the foolish desire to prove shooting prowess sometimes causes a human casualty. Proof of this is found in the number of persons shot in mistake for the unimportant woodchuck.

Certainly the TEN COMMANDMENTS OF GUN SAFETY are as important as they ever were. But if the use of ordinary common sense were the rule who would: fail to learn about his gun and safe hunting methods before going afield; point a firearm (loaded or unloaded) at himself or another; not keep the gun "on safe" until ready to fire at a clearly visible bird or animal; not restrain himself, knowing that after a mistake shooting it is too late to wish a bullet could be called back?

So emotional control is recognized as highly important in human shooting prevention. Now the problem boils down to this: how to impress all hunters as to the need for common-sense precautions and for guarding their reactions at the moment game is sighted--when pulses pound and everything but bagging that bird or animal is momentarily forgotten.

DON'T WASTE RABBITS

The hunting season for rabbits always brings inquiries about warbles, worms and rabbit fever. It has long been known that the cottontail is host to a number of parasites, also to diseases not usually harmful to man. Nonetheless the sporty bunny continues to be the most hunted small game animal.

Warbles are the larvae of the rabbit bot fly. These pests are usually embedded in the neck skin but may be found elsewhere on rabbits. They do not penetrate or injure the meat. Rabbits carrying the parasite are completely safe to eat.

Tapeworms found in a rabbit's digestive tract have a flattened, tape-like appearance as the name implies. Neither do these parasites harm the carcass for human consumption.

A tularemia-infected liver usually has so many tiny white spots the organ assumes a grayish caste. Ailments other than tularemia cause spots on the liver. Tularemia, (rabbit fever) can be transmitted to man in dressing out or handling infected cottontails. The usual entry is made in a cut or scratch on a hunter's hand. An obvious preventive measure is to wear rubber gloves while cleaning the animals. There have been very few cases of tularemia in Pennsylvania in recent years, therefore the likelihood of infection appears slight.

Doubts and squeamishness have caused hunters in past to discard many a rabbit that, properly cooked, could have been relished as table fare. Reasonable care in handling rabbits is recommended, but the product of the chase should not be wasted.
